RE: Spousal Relocation Services

COMFORCE is honored to operate a premier staffing agency in New Mexico – and has done so for nearly two decades.

Among the services offered by COMFORCE, spousal relocation services are among the most important. Often, when a corporation relocates numerous employees, the spouses of those employees are also affected. They too must leave their existing employers in most cases, only to “start over” in a new community, without an understanding of the local economy, without local contacts or referral networks, and without much hope of securing a position at the level of achievement they had already attained in the communities they are leaving.

COMFORCE is the partner, counselor, referral network, and the “eyes and ears” of relocating spouses in such situations. By working with a COMFORCE recruiter, a relocating spouse immediately taps into an entire range of employment opportunities, which can contribute to finding a job more quickly, and to finding a more appropriate job -- one which takes fuller advantage of one’s skills and experience, and where the compensation is more commensurate with one’s true value in the job market. Most importantly, this can enable a relocating couple or family to more easily maintain the standard of living to which they had become accustomed in their previous home. Of course, that will make New Mexico feel like home that much faster!

COMFORCE is proud to work with the Rio Rancho Economic Development Corporation in sharing this information with you. If you are a relocating spouse, please contact COMFORCE at the toll-free number above, and ask to speak with a recruiter as soon as practical. It is highly recommended that one make initial contact with a recruiter prior to relocation, in order to enable the recruiting staff to more effectively prospect for new job opportunities on one’s behalf that much sooner. Many of COMFORCE’s clients will happily conduct initial interviews with qualified applicants by phone, and follow up with a face-to-face interview following actual relocation. Taking the initiative early creates better prospects for success.

Through its nationwide network of offices, COMFORCE provides outsourced staffing management services in addition to specialty staffing, consulting services, staffing payroll solutions, and vendor management services for Fortune 1000, emerging growth companies, hospitals, medical facilities and multiple government agencies in the U.S. and internationally. COMFORCE prides itself in service excellence and enhancing their clients "Productivity Through People®."

Our New Mexico office is located in Albuquerque and serves the communities of the greater Rio Grande technology corridor, including Los Alamos, Santa Fe, Rio Rancho, Albuquerque, Los Lunas, Belen, and West Texas. The division has continuing relationships with numerous industries, including biomedical research, public utilities, defense contracting, manufacturing, healthcare, information technology and more – serving clients by providing temporary (contract) personnel, as well as recruiting services for direct placement with client companies.
